BIKING TOGETHER

DISSEMINATION EVENTS

As part of Biking Together, local sessions were organised with young people and key stakeholders to promote dialogue on cycling, sustainable mobility and more inclusive communities. Through interactive activities, debates and the exchange of experiences, the young participants explored the benefits of cycling, road safety and the role of active mobility in promoting healthier and more environmentally friendly lifestyles. Local stakeholders contributed their knowledge of the realities of their area, helping to identify challenges, barriers and opportunities relating to accessibility, safety and participation.

By bringing together young people, organisations, professionals and local actors, these sessions created spaces for exchange, cooperation and shared reflection, encouraging practical ideas and local solutions to make cycling more accessible, attractive and inclusive. These activities also helped to strengthen local networks and to reinforce the role of the bicycle as a tool for promoting healthier, more sustainable and cycling-friendly communities.

TOOLS FOR WORKSHOPS AND SESSIONS

To support the delivery of the local sessions, the materials and documentation needed for the workshops were also prepared, including the agenda, certificates of participation, presentation materials, resources for the activities and evaluation tools. These materials helped to ensure a clear structure for the sessions, made the facilitators' work easier and gave participants a coherent, participatory and engaging learning experience.

CONTINUOUS TRANSNATIONAL COMMUNICATION AND COORDINATION

The partner organisations continue to maintain regular communication and close coordination throughout the project. Monthly online meetings are still being used to coordinate the final details, share updates on local activities, review ongoing tasks and ensure that all partners move forward in a coordinated and consistent way.

These exchanges have also been important for adjusting and improving the delivery of the sessions with young people, the activities with stakeholder groups and the project materials, as well as for addressing any practical issues that may arise. This ongoing cooperation helps to keep the partnership aligned, supports the quality of the final results and ensures a consistent implementation of the Biking Together project in all the participating countries.
